How writers monetize words:
The marketplaces for writing in digital formats

Edward Hasbrouck
National Writers Union (NWU.org)

March 28, 2019
There is no “typical” writer.

• Most working writers aren’t making a living from our writing.

• Most writers have multiple income streams, often from different business models.

• Different writers prioritize different ways of monetizing our work.
Four dimensions of monetization:

1. Business models
2. Revenue sources
3. Digital publication formats
4. Frontlist vs. backlist
1st Dimension: Business Models

1. Employment (inc. creation of works for hire)

2. Independent contracting (can be similar to employment in some ways, but is not subject to work-for-hire laws or employment rights including wage and hour laws, unemployment compensation, and collective bargaining)

3. Freelancing (licensing to third-party publishers)

4. Self-publishing
2nd Dimension: Revenue Sources

1. Wages and wage-like contracting fees
2. Sales (including de facto sales through all-rights contracts)
3. Licensing
4. Advertising
5. Subscriptions and memberships
3rd Dimension: Publication formats

1. Web content (Web sites, blogs, etc.)
2. Apps
3. E-books and other downloads
4. E-mail (newsletters, etc.)
5. Movies, videos, electronic games, and virtual reality experiences (e.g. use of a work of fiction as the basis for plot, characters, dialogue, etc.)
4th Dimension: Frontlist vs. Backlist

1. Creating new works (frontlist)
2. Generating revenue from rights to older works (personal backlist)
Many marketplaces for digital text:

• Each of these four dimensions of monetization is independent of the others.

• These modes of monetization are also independent of the genre of writing (poetry, journalism, fiction, instructional materials, etc.).

• A work can be monetized in multiple ways at the same time, and in different ways at different times – or in only one way.
200 Ways to make a Living as a Writer in the Digital Age:

4 business models
x 5 revenue sources
x 5 digital publication formats
x 2 types of works: new works and old works
= 200 modes of monetization of digital text
Practical implications of the diversity of marketplaces for digital text:

- Statistics, industry analysis, and business plans
- Procedures (copyright registration, identifiers, cataloguing and indexing, etc.)
Policy implications of the diversity of marketplaces for digital text:

- “Fair Use” and other exceptions and limitations (example: “Controlled Digital Lending”)
- “Market Failure” vs. market choice (example: “Orphan Works”)
Trends in monetization of text (obvious):

• Print → digital
• 3rd-party publishers → self-publishing
• Traditional “publishers” → new intermediaries
Trends in monetization of text (less obvious):

• Frontlist → Backlist (inc. “re-mix” of own work)
• Long-form → short-form & “granular” text
• Fixed “editions” → dynamic publication
• Geographic segmentation → time-limited licensing (issues for “caching” and archiving)
National Writers Union (NWU)

UAW Local 1981, AFL-CIO

https://nwu.org

Edward Hasbrouck

Co-Chair, NWU Book Division

+1-415-824-0214

edward@hasbrouck.org